About to Begin Build-

The Street Committee last night showed a disposition to accede to the request of the Citzens' Rapid Transit Company to extend the franchise of the corporation

so that the work of building their new electric line here may be completed by underground conduit system, though the matter will not be inally passed upon until the next meeting of the body, which will occur on November 28th. Hon. Charles V. Meredith appeared for the company, and stated that if the extension sought should be given, his clients believed they would be able shortly to arrange the financial part of the scheme, and be ready to proceed actively with the prosecution of the work on the proposed new line.

But for the reason that there is a requirement that amendments to franchises shall be printed for ten days prior to their adoption, it is believed the committee would have acted favorable last night.

As soon as the committee was called to order, Mr. J. B. McCaw, who succeeded Mr. J. G. Corley, a member of the Council from Henry Ward, was seated as a member of the committee,

On motion of Mr. Minor, the superintendent of the water works, the city englineer and city attorney were instructed to report to the committee with the view to protecting the city against electrolysis in the construction of the proposed new company.

Dr. Levy stated that the tests made of the water at these points had failed to disclose any matter thought to be injurious to health, but he had found that pelow points where pulp mills are in opethe water is discolored to such an extent that he fears the proposed siom of clearing water here through the settling basin may have to be changed.

The water taken from those points, so contains no impurities, such as would contains no impurities, such as would be dangerous to the public health, but it is made of a yellowish color, which renders it difficult to clear. Of course, the color is largely restored before the water reaches here, but it is feared that some other system than that now being provided may have to be adopted in order to get the good results hitherto expect-

May Invoke the Law.

May linvoke the Law.

Dr. Leyy will continue his tests and will be in a position later on to make a much fuller report to the committee.

He discovered the slight discoloration in the water here, and determined to make tests along up the river, and the result is that he found the trouble much more evident the nearer he got to the location of the pulp mills. It is not unlikely that the Council may invoke the law shortly to prevent the discoloration of water in the river at points where pulp mills are in operation, but until Dr. Levy proceed further, no definite steps will be taken.

Trial Delayed.

Major C. C. Taliaferro was the next witness. He testified that on Sunday afternoon, the 20th, he had been on a visit to friends, and had stopped his buggy at the corner of Commerce and Eleventh Avenue, when he heard some one cry out: "My husband has been murdered. Catch that man." Charles Pishburne ran down the street and stopped at the opposite corner. He went over and asked him what was the trouble. He said Dr. Lefew had insulted him. He said he went and rang the bell at Lefew's, and lilm what was the trouble. He said he Lefew had insulted him. He said he went and rang the bell at Lefew's, and just as he got to the gate Dr. Lefew knocked him down twice, and he stabbed him. He seemed perfectly cool and collected. He asked him to got a doctor. He drove to Dr. Buckner's, but he was out, and then he saw Dr. Brown, got him, and took him to the Lefew residence. He then went after Dr. Fry.

The Operations.

Dr. H. E. Jones testified that he was called up over the 'phone on the svening or the 30th, and told that a man had been stabbed near the Presbylerian Church. As he was getting ready a second message came that it was at the Lefew residence. He got there at 6:20, and examined the wound. It was about one-quarter of an inch long and cut over the fifth rib. Dr. Lefew was pulseless and very pale. He did not think it would be long before the end came. Dr. Brown and other physicians were present, and from that time on physicians took turns sinying at the home night and day. Two operations were performed, one on the 5th and the other on the 11th. On the fifth Dr. Lefew bled about three pints, and as much more at night. The whole of the fost cavity of the chest seemed to be filled with blood. He railled from the operations after the 5th, but that of the lifth was without results.

The operations were performed by Dr. McGuirs of Richmond. Fishburne's knife entered the middle of the chest cutting the fifth rib and went through the covering of the heart entering the right artery. The wound caused death.

Clabs Jennings (colored) who is employed by the Lefew family, testified that he answered the bell when Fishburne called. Dr. Lefew came down and told him to light the gas. When he came back, Mrs. Lefew was running out of the door, and Dr. Lefew was lying on the walk.

Dr. Brown stated that he had the garments placed in a closet on the night of the 30th, and had the key ever since.

Mr Charles Jennings testified that he had been out for a drive in the county in his carriage on the 30th, and was talking to Edward Moyler on the corner of Commerce and Eleventh Avenue when he heard screams at the Lefew residence. Mr. Sullivan is survived by six children:
Misses Willie and Fannie Sullivan, L. D.,
Guy and Harold Sullivan, all of Richmond, and Rev. J. A. Sullivan, of West Point, Va.
There is an interest.

Guy and Harold Sullivan, all of Richmond, and Rov. J. A. Sullivan, of West Point, Va.

There is an interesting bit of history in the life of Mr. Sullivan, which is known to comparatively few persons. At the outbreak of the war between the States he was a boy of sixteen, residing it. Bosion, Mass., where he had been born and reared. When the Southern States seceded, young Sullivan left his home and kinsmen and went South to cast his fortunes with the Confederacy. He went to Monigomery, Ala., the first capital of the Confederate States, and there enlisted in a company of sharp-shooters, with which he served during the entire war, attaining the expression of the Company. When the war closed the youthful veteran located in Richmond, Va., and here married Miss Fannie Puling. She died some years ago. The Boston lad, who took up arms against the Union, never revisited his childhood's home, after going South at the beginning of the war.

The funeral services took place from the residence at 4 P. M. yesterday, Rev. W. R. L. Smith conducting them. A detail from Lee Camp attended the funeral and followed the body to the grave. The pull-bearers were: J. B. Montgomery, E. P. Murphy, W. N. Jackson, A. D. Jackson, J. V. Cherry and George L. Powers. The interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

E. G. Steane.

Mr. E. G. Steane, formerly of this city, dide Sunday in Philadelphia, aged sixtyfour years. He was unmarried. The remains will be brought to this city, and are expected to arrive at $2.50 A. M. today. The body will be met at the Byrd Street Station by the Richmond Howitzer
Association, and will be buried in Hollywood Cemetery.

Mr. Steane was a son of Edward Steane of the city. He was scarcely twenty-one years old when the war began, and enisted in the First Company of Richmond Howitzers, and served thereafarter until the surrender and even later, not being among those who surrendered at Appomattox. He was a ginner corporal of the command. The company escaped capture with the remainder of the army at Appomattox and made its way to Lynchburg, where the command disbanded after burying its guns. In company with a dozen or more others young Steane started south to join General Joe Johnston, but learning at Charlotte, N. C., that Johnston, too, was negotiating for surrender, this remnant of the company signed their parole and made their way back to Richmond. Mr. Steane's war recsurrender, this remnant of the company signed their parple and made their way back to Richmond. Mr. Steane's war record was conspleuous for gallantry, notably at Gettysburg, where he alone manned a gun and wrought havos with the Federal charking column.

Afte the wa M. Steane emoved to Philadelphia, whee he was employed by a publishing holds for some time. Latene opened a tobacco stoc and had conducted it ever slice. Almost every year he visited his sister, Mrs. Norton R. Savago, of this city, and his old comrades here.
